

In brief

Working together through consultation

September 2018

Supported by the Australian Government Department of Education. © 2019 Education Services Australia Ltd, unless otherwise indicated. Creative Commons BY 4.0, unless otherwise indicated. Disability Standards for Education: A Practical Guide for Individuals, Families and Communities material © University of Canberra, unless otherwise indicated. Licensed to Education Services Australia for use by individuals, families and communities. Refer to Terms of Use. Authorised by the Australian Government, Canberra.

Australian Government Department of Education Consultation is a discussion held with the aim of sharing knowledge and opinions before making a decision. Schools need to consult so that they have information about the best way to teach and support all their students.

1 Getting the most out of consultation

Ask for a meeting before problems come up.

1.1 Before the meeting

- Work out the purpose of the meeting and what everyone might want.
- Work out who needs to attend.

1.2 Useful information to bring

- If the purpose is 'Getting to know the student', take information on your child's strengths.
- If the purpose is 'Adjustments', take reports that will help the teacher to work out the best support for your child; e.g. reports from occupational therapists, paediatricians or psychologists.

1.3 During the meeting

- Focus on the needs of the student.
- Listen respectfully to each other without criticising.
- Speak openly and honestly: Hiding information so that people feel better does not help the student.
- Stay calm: It is better to take a break during the meeting than to be upset; bring a person to help you if you find meetings difficult.

1.4 Before the meeting ends

- Work out if anyone else needs to be present at future meetings.
- Decide when to meet again to check how things are going.
- Agree on how to communicate going forward.
- Write down what everyone has agreed and what each person will do and when.

Consultation is an ongoing process. You may need several meetings to reach agreement on an issue.